FOLD

PATCHING

by Steve Schaeffer

This is a ballad that my father helped me write for my High School English class in 1960! Back then it was multi carb flathead V-8's against the new 265 and 283 Chev V-8's. In 35yrs. the flathead V-8 is dead, but the small block Chev V-8 in the new Camaro's & Firebirds are stronger than ever. The 5.0 V-8 Mustang is one of the most popular performance cars on the street. Thirty-five years later and we are still burning rubber!

I met him at the stoplight;
I looked him over good.
He was driving a high boy oldster;
I was driving my cut down hood.

The guy in the next lane said,
"Daddy, your're a sport.
But when the light turns green,
I'm going to leave you short."

Well, I punched that clutch,
Shoved my tranny into low.
By the time she revved to 5000,
She was straining for the go.

I watched the light intently,
As it changed from red to green.
I heard the roar of his straight pipes,
And felt the power of my machine.

I looked up in my mirror,
And looked back down the street
I saw the concrete darkened,
Those patches were no treat.

No where was that high boy;
He was lost in the setting sun.
This ends my dream of dragging,
And a victory that wasn't won.

By the way if gasoline runs in my blood, I come by it honetly.
Back then my dad was running a '58 Merc with a 430 cubic inch, 360 H.P.,
Lincoln engine in it.

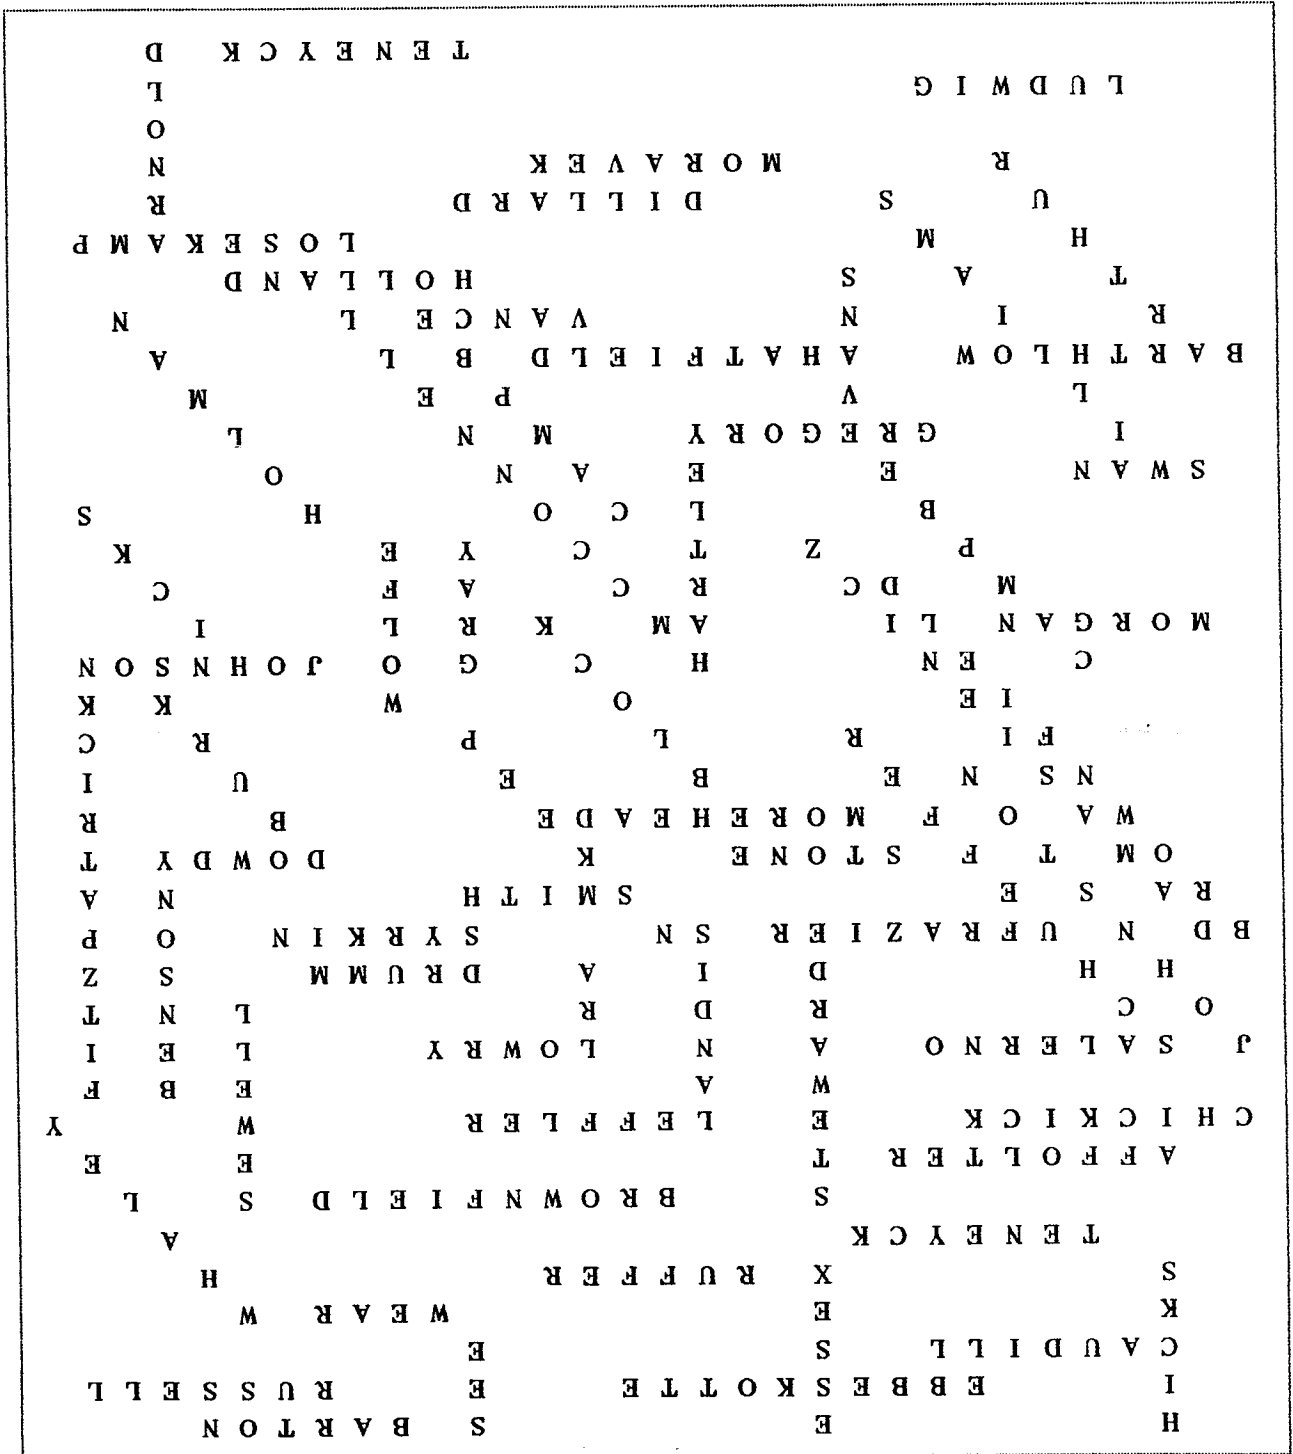

Dad always liked big fast cars. If he was alive today his toy would have to be a new Super Sport Impala with the Corvette engine in it.
